LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

PREFACE.

In 1901 the Chicago Library Club issued a "List of Serials in Public Libraries of Chicago and Evanston." There had previously been published lists of the periodicals currently received in the most important libraries of certain cities, as Baltimore (1876, 1881), Boston (1878, 1897), New York (1887), and Toronto (1898), but the Chicago List was the first attempt to bring into a single volume an exhibit of the entire collection of periodicals in the public libraries of any locality. According to the statement given in its preface, the work of planning, gathering. consolidating, editing, printing and revising the lists supplied by fifteen selected libraries consumed more than four years. The final result was a compact catalogue, occupying 185 pages, giving the titles of some 6640 serials, and showing exactly where all or most of each serial could be found in or near Chicago. This compilation was hailed with approval by librarians throughout the country. Its usefulness is further attested by the subsequent issue of a Supplement by the John Crerar Library.

Philadelphia is the seat of the oldest public library in the United States—that founded by Benjamin Franklin, who calls it in his Autobiography, "the mother of all North American subscription libraries." Other learned institutions, the American Philosophical Society and the University of Pennsylvania gratefully acknowledge their indebtedness to the same far-sighted, public-spirited genius and still carry on his plans of benefiting the community by maintaining libraries. According to the Report of the United States Bureau of Education for 1903 Philadelphia had then 120 "public, society and school libraries."

Shortly after the founding of the Pennsylvania Library Club Mr. Thomas L. Montgomery suggested the publication by the Club of a list similar to that of the Chicago Library Club. The idea was favorably received, but some difference of opinion as to the extent of the work to be undertaken postponed any action. The cost of the enterprise seemed a serious obstacle; but was finally assumed by the Trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia, several of the institutions of the city subscribing for definite numbers of the publication in advance. Twenty-two leading libraries of the city and three in its vicinity are represented in this catalogue.

The work of compilation was commenced under Mr. Montgomery's direction, but his appointment as State Librarian of Pennsylvania and consequent removal to Harrisburg prevented his further participation in the task. After an interval the Trustees were fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr. John P. Lamberton, who has completed the work, and they desire to express their hearty appreciation of his intelligent performance of the duty devolving upon him.

The general plan and style of this catalogue are taken from the list of the Chicago Library Club. But there are two important modifications, one tending greatly to enlarge the number of entries, the other to diminish the number. The Chicago List gave no credit to a library for possessing a certain serial, unless it had at least five of the volumes published, or a complete set when only a few had been issued. In the present list an endeavor has been made to show what every library actually has of each periodical named, even if it has but a single volume, or has only some incomplete volumes. If, however, a library has reported only one or two numbers or parts of a periodical, it has not been entered unless these were regarded as of exceptional value. Colleges which publish only catalogues have not been entered. The second modification of the Chicago practice is that Government publications have been excluded.

The form and method of entry are in general the same as those used in the Chicago list, which in turn were taken from the "List of Periodicals . . . currently received in the Principal Libraries of Boston and vicinity." American and English journals published by a society but having a specific title are entered under that title with reference from the name of the society. Publications of a foreign (non-English) society are entered under the name of the society. When a society, whether American or foreign, has a regular place of meeting or publication, reference has been made from such place to the name of the society. Other references have occasionally been made, when it was thought that they would facilitate search for a publication desired.

A careful count of a select number of pages in various parts of the work seems to warrant the estimate that 12,012 serials are recorded, almost exactly the same number as in the Supplement to the Chicago list (1906). Some of the titles, however, may denote only occasional publications, and some, professing to be annual, may have been issued only once. It may be a disappointment to searchers to find no record of certain American periodicals. It is not unlikely that some of these missing journals are actually in the possession of one of our libraries, but have not been duly catalogued. It is a fact that the research for the present list disclosed a few such instances. It is also interesting to observe here mention of several periodicals which were published in London or other parts of Great Britain, yet are not recorded in the catalogue of the British Museum.

Cordial thanks should be given to the printers of this work, Messrs. Allen, Lane & Scott, and to their efficient workmen for careful composition and proofreading. Hearty thanks are also due for assistance in revision to most of our fellow-librarians.

John Thomson,
Librarian.

DESCRIPTIVE LIST OF LIBRARIES.

A. THE AMERICAN PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY,

Fifth Street, below Chestnut.

The American Philosophical Society was founded in 1743 by Benjamin Franklin and his associates of scientific proclivity. The first President was Thomas Hopkinson, but its early work is obscure. In 1768 there was joined to it a similar and perhaps more popular society which had grown out of the well known Junto. Franklin was then chosen President and thenceforth its Minutes and Transactions have been preserved. It was incorporated in March, 1780, and soon afterwards obtained a grant of part of the State House square, adjoining Independence Hall, and proceeded to erect a building which was completed in 1791. It still occupies this edifice, somewhat enlarged. The Society had early begun to gather a Library, but, so far as its records show, it did not appoint a librarian until 1775, when David Rittenhouse, the distinguished astronomer and patriot, was chosen to that post. On the death of Franklin in 1791, Rittenhouse was made President, and in like manner, in 1796, he was succeeded by Thomas Jefferson.

The Society's library comprises upwards of 45,000 volumes, mostly on subjects of science, though many are of historical value. Its specialty is the publications of the learned societies of the world and scientific serials. It has also valuable manuscript collections. The books are circulated among the members, and are available for reference by any one presenting a card of introduction from a member.

The Library is open daily (except on legal holidays) from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M., but on Saturdays it is closed at 1 P. M.

I. Minis Hays, Secretary.

Christine S. Trepp, Librarian.

Ac. ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES OF PHILADELPHIA,

Nineteenth and Race Streets, South Logan Square.

This Academy was founded in 1812, and the Library was then projected, but was hardly organized until 1816, when William Maclure, who was elected President in 1817, began his liberal donations. It is intended for the use of the members of the Academy, and is exclusively for reference, but serious students of natural science are freely allowed access to its books. It is open on week-days, except legal holidays, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The Library contains 60,000 volumes almost entirely devoted to natural history and biology. The collection is especially rich in early sets of periodicals and transactions of societies, and in superbly illustrated monographs on plants, birds, insects, mollusks and mammals.

Edward J. Nolan, M.D., Librarian.

William J. Fox, Assistant.

Ap. APPRENTICES' LIBRARY, Broad and Brandywine Streets.

The Apprentices' Library was founded in 1820 by some benevolent citizens for the benefit of apprentices and other young persons similarly employed. It was first opened in Carpenters' Hall for a few hours each week. It was incorporated in 1821. For a long time it occupied the building at Fifth and Arch Streets, which had been the Meeting house of the Free Quakers. It removed to its present quarters in 1897. It has 24,000 volumes, and its reading room is supplied with suitable periodicals. Boys and girls and working women are allowed to take books out freely.

The Library is open daily (except on Sundays and holidays) from 2 to 8 P. M., and on Saturdays from 11 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Jean Y. Middleton, Librarian.

At. THE ATHENAEUM OF PHILADELPHIA,

Sixth and Adelphi Streets, below Walnut.

The Athenaeum of Philadelphia was formed in 1814 by some educated gentlemen for social and literary purposes, and was incorporated in 1815. It began its career in rooms over Mathew Carey's book store, afterwards occupied part of the American Philosophical Society's building, and in 1845 erected its own building, in which it uses commodious rooms on the second floor.

The Library contains a careful selection of literature of high grade and receives regularly periodicals of this class. It comprises 38,000 volumes. It is open to visitors for reference, and the members of the Athenaeum are allowed to take books out. It is open daily (except Sundays) from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Louis K. Lewis, Librarian.

B. BRYN MAWR COLLEGE, Bryn Mawr, Pa., 10 miles from Philadelphia.

This College was founded by Dr. Joseph W. Taylor, of Burlington, N. J., as an institution of advanced learning for women. It was incorporated in 1880, and was opened for instruction in 1885. The Library is designed for special advanced study, and comprises about 48,000 volumes and 8000 pamphlets. It expends yearly $4000 for the purchase of books, and has been enriched by many liberal donations. It receives regularly 354 serial publications and reviews in many languages.

The Library is open daily from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. Books may be taken out by the students, unless specially reserved for reference. The students have also the privilege of the principal libraries of Philadelphia.

Isadore Gilbert Mudge, Librarian.

Bl. BIDDLE MEMORIAL LAW LIBRARY,

Thirty-fourth and Chestnut Streets.

This Library of the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, was founded in 1886 as a memorial of the three sons of George W. Biddle: George, Algernon Sydney and Arthur Biddle, all eminent lawyers. It has been formed to present as perfect a collection as possible of the English Common Law in all its branches. The Library is intended for the use of the students and professors of law in the University, but the privilege is freely granted to all persons desirous of studying law or engaged in any legal work. It has two large reading rooms each with desks for two hundred students while the graduate reading room has 24 large tables. During the scholastic term, from October 1st to June 15th, the Library is open daily from 8 A. M. to 11 P. M., and during the rest of the year from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The Library consists of 37,000 volumes, embracing statute law, case law, and the periodical law literature of all English-speaking countries. It contains the abridgements and treatises from the fifteenth century onward and the modern literature of the Common Law. It comprises also a collection on Roman and Civil Law, and an excellent series of French Reports.

Mrs. Margaret C. Klingelsmith, Librarian.

Cm. PHILADELPHIA MUSEUMS LIBRARY,

Thirty-fourth Street, below Spruce.

This Library was opened in 1896, as a reference library for the use of the Philadelphia Museums (formerly called the Philadelphia Commercial Museum), but open also to the public from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. on week-days, except legal holidays and Saturday afternoons.

It is a commercial library, containing 21,000 books and 36,000 pamphlets. These comprise official publications from every nation, especially those concerning the statistics of foreign trade, the consular reports of the leading countries, and the tariffs of all nations. It has also directories of all the principal cities, and many trade directories. Besides these there are books treating of the history of commerce, economics, natural history, travels, science and the useful arts. A large number of trade, industrial and commercial periodicals, both American and foreign, are regularly received. The library is a depository of all the United States Government publications.

JOHN J. MACFARLANE, Librarian.

Cp. THE COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS OF PHILADELPHIA,
Thirteenth and Locust Streets.

This College was founded in 1787 for the promotion of medical science. Its Library was commenced in 1788, when Dr. John Morgan presented 24 volumes. The first catalogue was made in 1819. The Library was but little used until the College secured a building in 1855, when large donations followed. In 1863 it was removed to the present building, which is now crowded with its accumulations. In 1864 Dr. Lewis presented his collection of 2,500 volumes of the choicest works and continued to enlarge the number until his death in 1890, when it comprised 11,205 volumes. Other valuable collections were subsequently received. The total number of bound volumes is 75,616, of unbound pamphlets 62,300, of unbound reports 8,807, besides 21,730 dissertations. The Library receives regularly 730 periodicals, of which about 400 are foreign publications. Among its treasures are reckoned 123 incunabula.

The Library is open daily (except on legal holidays) from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. in winter, and from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. (Saturdays till 12 M.) in summer. The use of the reading room is free to all; the Fellows of the College are allowed to take books out, subject to the rules.

CHARLES PERRY FISHER, Librarian.

Cr. CROZER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, Upland, adjoining Chester, Pa.

This Seminary, designed for the education of Baptist ministers, is pleasantly situated at Upland, just beyond the border of Chester. William Bucknell, a liberal benefactor, provided the library, which is therefore named in his honor, Bucknell Library. It contains 18,000 bound volumes and a large collection of pamphlets. It is especially rich in works pertaining to Bible study, theology and Church history, ancient and modern. It has three large reading rooms, well provided with works of reference and the leading periodicals. Books may also be taken out by the students and professors. The Library is open daily (except on Sundays) from 8 A. M. to 12 M., from 1 to 5 P. M., and from 7 to 10 P. M.

HENRY C. VEDDER, Librarian.

D. DREXEL INSTITUTE LIBRARY, Thirty-second and Chestnut Streets.

The Drexel Institute of Art, Science and Industry was founded in 1891 by Anthony J. Drexel, and liberally endowed by him. The Library is an important part of the Institute and is free to its Faculty and students and to residents of Philadelphia for reference and circulation of books. It contains 35,000 volumes and 5,000 pamphlets, and receives regularly 150 periodicals. It is well furnished with works on the fine arts, music, science and the industrial arts. The George W. Childs collection of manuscripts is an attractive feature. In connection with the Library a Library School is conducted.

The Library is open daily (except on legal holidays) from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

ALICE B. KROEGER, Librarian.

En. AMERICAN ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY,

Located in the building of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Logan Square.

This Society was founded in 1859 as the Philadelphia Entomological Society, but later changed its name. It is devoted exclusively to the study of insects, and its library, now comprising about 4000 works, is confined to that subject. Any properly accredited person may consult its books, which are not allowed to be taken out. Eighty-five periodicals are regularly received. The Library is open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. daily, except Sundays.

EZRA T. CRESSON, JR., Librarian.

F. THE FREE LIBRARY OF PHILADELPHIA, 1217–1221 Chestnut Street.

This institution was chartered in 1891 and established by ordinance of the City Councils in its present form in 1894. Its Board of Trustees consists of the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia (ex officio), the Presidents of both branches of the City Councils (ex officio), one citizen elected annually by each branch of the City Councils, and eighteen other members. All vacancies in the Board (excepting ex officio members and the members elected by the Councils) are filled alternately by the Board and by the Mayor subject to the confirmation of the latter by Select Council.

The Free Library, in addition to the temporary quarters occupied at 1217–1221 Chestnut Street, maintains eighteen branches. In 1904 Mr. Andrew Carnegie gave to the City one and a half million dollars to pay for the erection of thirty branch buildings. The Library is mainly supported by an annual appropriation from the City of Philadelphia and receives in addition the income of bequests of the late George S. Pepper, George B. Roberts, R. G. White and Robert Livezey. Two buildings used as branches have been given to the Free Library, one by Mr. Peter A. B. Widener as a memorial of his wife, H. Josephine, and the other (leased at a nominal rent) by Mr. John Wanamaker. Two of the sites on which the branch buildings have been erected from Mr. Carnegie's gift, have been presented by the City and ten by citizens of Philadelphia.

The Free Library at 1217–1221 Chestnut Street contains 116,752 volumes including 14,430 bound volumes of periodicals, and 44,725 pamphlets, and has 605 periodicals on file. The branches, which are scattered throughout the City, contain 204,891 volumes, making a total of 321,643 volumes. The branches have 1117 periodicals on file. The main library and all the branches with the exception of a few of the smaller ones are open daily, except on Sundays and holidays, from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.; the other branches are open from 2 P. M. to 9 P. M.

All persons residing in the City of Philadelphia are permitted to take out two books at a time and to retain them for a period of two weeks. Open access is allowed to the shelves so that the patrons of the Library can select for themselves the books they desire to read.

JOHN THOMSON, Librarian.

Fi. THE FRANKLIN INSTITUTE OF PENNSYLVANIA,

South Seventh Street, below Market.

The Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania was founded in 1824 by public-spirited citizens for the promotion of the mechanic arts. For this purpose it maintains technical schools and provides courses of scientific lectures. The Library is intended for the use of the members and is open for reference on week days, usually from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., sometimes till 6 P. M., and on Thursdays till 10 P. M. It is open to the public for reference to public documents from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

The Library contains 62,000 volumes, about 45,000 pamphlets, 2,040 maps and charts, and 1,250 photographs, classified and catalogued, It is exclusively scientific and technical in character. It receives the publications of the principal scientific and technical societies of the world and has files of 565 domestic and foreign serials.

ALFRED RIGLING, Librarian.

Fr. THE FRIENDS' LIBRARY, No. 142 North Sixteenth Street.

The Friends' Library originated in 1742 upon the acceptance by the Monthly Meeting of Philadelphia of the bequest by Thomas Chalkley of 111 volumes. It has since continued under their care and has been gradually increased until it now contains 16,800 volumes. It comprises works of science, religion, education and general literature, but works of fiction are excluded. The Charles Roberts library of Friends' Books, and the special collections of that department, including many writings of the seventeenth century, are considered to form the largest collection of that kind in the United States.

The use of the reading room and works of reference is free to the public. Any person, giving satisfactory reference, may borrow books from the Library. It is open on week days from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M., and from 2 to 6 P. M.

MARY S. ALLEN, Librarian.

H. THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA,

Thirteenth and Locust Streets.

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania was formed in 1824, for the purpose of investigating and preserving the history of the State. It published the first volume of its Memoirs in 1825, and continued to issue such Memoirs irregularly for more than thirty years. Then it began to publish quarterly The Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography. It has accumulated a valuable library containing upwards of 55,000 bound volumes, and 90,000 pamphlets, besides large collections of manuscripts, autographs, maps, paintings and engravings, illustrating American history. The Library is exclusively for reference, but the privilege of its reading rooms is open to all.

The Library is open daily (except on Sundays and legal holidays) from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. It is closed during the month of August.

JOHN W. JORDAN, Librarian.

Hav. HAVERFORD COLLEGE, Haverford, Pa., 9 miles from Philadelphia.

Haverford College was founded in 1830 as an institution of higher education by members of the Society of Friends. It is situated about nine miles from Philadelphia on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Library was commenced in 1833, and now contains about 50,000 volumes. It is well supplied with standard works of reference and general literature as well as the special works required by the various departments of instruction. It is rich in theology, history, Friends' books and sets of periodicals. Among other things deserving notice are the valuable collection of manuscripts gathered in the East, several hundred Assyrian tablets, and facsimiles of the great uncial manuscripts of the Bible. The Charles Roberts collection of autographs contains many papers of historical and literary value. The Library receives regularly 170 periodicals. It is also a United States depository for Government publications.

The Library is open during the scholastic year (from the 25th of September, to the 15th of June) from 8.30 A. M. to 10 P. M. on week days, except Saturdays, when it is closed at 6 P. M.

ALLEN C. THOMAS, Librarian.

L. THE LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA,

Locust Street below Broad.

RIDGWAY BRANCH, Broad and Christian Streets.

The Library Company of Philadelphia was organized in 1731 by Benjamin Franklin and his friends as the first subscription library in America. In 1732 a select number of books was imported from London and Louis Timothee was appointed librarian. The collection was opened on two days each week, subscribers being allowed to take books out, and others to examine them on the premises. The books were stored in various places until 1789, when the company was enabled to erect its own building on Fifth Street below Chestnut. William Bingham presented a marble statue of Franklin which was placed in a niche over the entrance. Hence the library was often called by Franklin's name. A valuable library, collected by James Logan and intended by him for public use, was entrusted by his heirs to the Library Company in 1792, and is still kept distinct as the Loganian Library. In 1877 a noble granite building, erected at Broad and Christian Streets, in pursuance of the will of Dr. James Rush, was offered by the executor to the Library Company on certain conditions. It was accepted in 1878 as the Ridgway Branch, being so called in memory of the Ridgway family, to which Dr. Rush's wife belonged. In the meantime the Library Company had erected a commodious brick building on Locust Street, which is still used as its main office. This building was afterwards enlarged by the liberality of Henry C. Lea.

All classes of literature are abundantly represented in the Philadelphia Library. It has a large collection of valuable manuscripts and incunabula, and many rare and finely illustrated works. The Loganian library, now in the Ridgway Branch, has early editions of the classics and mathematical works. The total number of bound volumes is 225,000, the pamphlets number 50,000. The collection of periodicals, American and foreign, is large and of a high order. Much literary work has been done in the buildings, and many writers have expressed gratitude for the benefit derived from the collections here stored.

The Library is open daily on week-days (except legal holidays), from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., and on Sundays from 2 to 5 P. M. The Ridgway Branch is closed in August.

George Maurice Abbot, Librarian.

Bunford Samuel, Assistant in charge of the Ridgway Branch.

La. LAW ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA,

City Hall, Broad and Market Streets.

The Law Association was formed in 1827 by the union of two similar bodies, the Law Library Company of Philadelphia, which was organized and incorporated in March, 1802, and the Associated Lawyers of Philadelphia, which was formed in 1807. It now occupies spacious rooms on the sixth floor of the City Hall. It has a law library of 50,000 volumes. The books are kept for the use of the members of the Association, for the Judges of all the courts, for public officials and lawyers visiting the city, and for other persons who receive special permission.

The Library is intended chiefly for reference, and is conducted on the open-shelf plan. Books may be taken to the court-rooms by members needing them, or by a court-officer. Books may be taken for use in private offices only upon the written order of the Librarian or of a member of the Library committee.

The Library is open daily (except on Sundays and legal holidays) from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. except on Saturdays, when it closes at 6 P. M.

Luther E. Hewitt, Librarian.

M. MERCANTILE LIBRARY, Tenth Street above Chestnut.

This stock and subscription library, founded in 1824 by public-spirited merchants for the benefit of persons employed in such business, gradually obtained popularity with general readers. It now contains 190,000 bound volumes, representing all departments of literature, to which new works are constantly added. It receives regularly 200 periodicals, domestic and foreign, and 135 newspapers. It has valuable files of old reviews, magazines and journals. The stockholders and members are allowed unrestricted access to its shelves, and careful provision is made for their comfort in its spacious rooms. They are also permitted to take books and magazines out for limited periods. The general public are admitted to the front room, and may obtain books for reading there by applying to the librarian.

The building is open daily from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. except in the summer months, when it is closed at 5 P. M. It is open on Sundays and on legal holidays from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., but books are not then given out.

T. Wilson Hedley, Librarian.

John Edmands, Librarian emeritus.

P. PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY,

Witherspoon Building, 1319 Walnut Street.

The Presbyterian Historical Society was organized in 1852 through the efforts of Samuel Agnew, who afterwards bequeathed to it his collection of books and a house. It was incorporated in 1857. The Library is now located in spacious quarters on the fifth floor of the Witherspoon Building. It is chiefly devoted to the histories of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, but contains also other valuable historical and theological works. The public are admitted freely to its reading-rooms, which are open daily, except Sundays, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Rev. Louis F. Benson, D.D., Honorary Librarian.

Phar. THE PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF PHARMACY,

Tenth Street above Cherry.

The Philadelphia College of Pharmacy was chartered in March, 1822. It was founded by a number of druggists and apothecaries to give proper instruction to persons desiring to engage in such occupation. Its first president was Charles Marshall. In 1832 the College was enabled to enter a building of its own in Filbert Street, and in 1868 it was removed to its present location. In 1829 it began to issue regularly its quarterly journal, now known as the American Journal of Pharmacy, which has done much to develop and improve the profession of pharmacy throughout the United States. The Library contains about 15,000 volumes, exclusively devoted to the medical sciences.

The Library is open daily (except on Sundays and legal holidays) from 9 A. M. till 9 P. M. The use of the reading room is free to all.

Thomas S. Wiegand, Librarian.

U. LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA,

Thirty-fourth and Locust Streets.

The University of Pennsylvania claims as its founder Benjamin Franklin, who in 1749 planned an Academy, which began operation under the Rev. William Smith in 1751. With the Academy a charity school was incorporated, which had been founded in 1740. It was chartered as the College and Academy of Philadelphia in 1755, and as the University of Pennsylvania in 1779. The Medical School was opened in 1765, by Dr. John Morgan, and the Law School by James Wilson, a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Dr. Smith considered a library essential to the College, and a collection of books was soon gathered. Some of these books are still preserved among the choice treasures of the University. Though increased from time to time, the Library remained small until the University was removed to its present grounds in West Philadelphia in 1872. Then it received the libraries of Stephen Colwell and Henry C. Carey, both devoted to social science and political economy. Other liberal donations and bequests followed, which led to the erection of a special building in 1891. Thenceforth the Library has grown with remarkable rapidity, being fostered by the Trustees and enriched by valuable donations. The most notable accession is the Dante library, bequeathed by Francis C. Macauley, which is the second largest of its kind in America. Among other special collections may be mentioned the Allen and Leutsch libraries of classical literature, the Bechstein library of Germanic philology and literature, the Pott library of Oriental philology, the Frazer library of physics, the Fairman Rogers library of engineering, the Brinton library of American linguistics, the William Pepper Medical library, the Charlemagne Tower library of Russian literature, and the Marcus Jastrow library of Talmudic literature and Semitic philology. There are many valuable manuscripts, and the collection of Franklin papers deserves special notice. The total number of volumes in the Library is 272,250, of which about 37,000 form the Biddle Memorial Law Library. There are approximately 50,000 pamphlets, and 1,498 periodicals are regularly received.

During the scholastic year, from October 1st to June 15th, the Library is open from 8.30 A. M. to 10 P. M. except on Sundays and legal holidays; during the summer vacations, it is open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The students' reading room is well supplied with works of reference in the main branches of instruction. These are kept on open shelves. The public reading room is liberally provided with periodicals. While the Library is intended primarily for the use of the students and professors, who are allowed to take books out, it is open to all for consultation and reference, and under certain conditions the full privileges of the Library are extended to those not connected with the University.

Morris Jastrow, Jr., Librarian.

Katharine S. Leiper, Assistant Librarian.

W. THE WAGNER FREE INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE.
THE WAGNER INSTITUTE BRANCH OF THE FREE LIBRARY,

Seventeenth Street and Montgomery Avenue.

The Wagner Free Institute owes its origin to Prof. William Wagner, who in 1847 began to deliver free scientific lectures. He built a large hall and furnished it with a valuable scientific collection. In March, 1855, he obtained from the Legislature of Pennsylvania a charter for the Institute, which was amended in March, 1864. The present building was fully completed in 1865. The Library of the Institute is for reference, and is mainly devoted to science; it contains upwards of 30,000 volumes, with about 40,000 unbound publications. About 100 periodicals are received each month.

On the formation of the Free Library of Philadelphia, the first Branch was also installed in part of this building. The Branch has nearly 30,000 volumes, which are loaned to residents of Philadelphia. In this Union List no distinction is made between the periodicals belonging to the Institute and those belonging to the Free Library. Both divisions are entirely free to the public.

The Library is open daily (except on legal holidays) from 9 A. M. to 9.30 P. M.

John G. Rothermel, M.D., Superintendent.

Katherine Devine, Librarian in charge.

Wd. THE H. JOSEPHINE WIDENER BRANCH OF THE FREE LIBRARY OF PHILADELPHIA,

Broad Street and Girard Avenue.

This Branch of the Free Library occupies a sumptuous brownstone mansion, formerly the residence of Mr. Peter A. B. Widener, which was presented by him to the Free Library as a memorial of his deceased wife, whose name it bears. It was opened for library purposes in May, 1900. It is exclusively a reference library, and its reading rooms are well supplied with current periodicals. It contains 8200 volumes, including the largest public collection of incunabula reported in America. Several thousand volumes, belonging to the main library, are also stored in this building temporarily.

The Library is open daily, except on Sundays and legal holidays, from 9 A. M. to 5.30 P. M.

EDITH BRINKMANN, Librarian in charge.

EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

The journals, transactions, proceedings, etc., of a society, are entered under the first word, not an article, of the latest form of the name of the society.

A serial published by a society, but having an individual title, is entered under the title, with reference from the name of the society.

A serial not published by a society is entered under the first word, not an article, of the latest form of the title.

Publications of an observatory are entered under the name of the place in which the observatory is situated or under the name of the university with which it is connected.

Colleges and universities having a geographical designation are entered under the name of the city, State, or country contained in the title.

Reference is made from the name of a place to all the societies which have their regular place of meeting there; from earlier forms of a title to the latest form; and in some cases from the name of the editor to the title of the serial.

Capital letters indicate the libraries in which the serial can be found, as given in the "Descriptive List of Libraries."

Volume numbers and dates are inclusive in all cases. A dash between volume numbers or dates signifies "from and including the former to and including the latter."

Volume numbers or dates in parentheses signify that these volumes are incomplete; if the volume numbers are given, the corresponding dates are not put in parentheses.

A plus sign (+) indicates that the serial is currently received, and that the set is complete from the last volume number or date given. If no number immediately precedes the +, it indicates that the serial is currently received, but the file is not preserved.

Parallels (‖) indicate that publication ceased with the preceding date or volume.

NOTE. — The Accademia dei Lincei, celebrated in the 17th century, was revived in 1801, but again expired in 1840. It was renewed, under the auspices of Pope Pius IX, in 1847 as Accademia pontificia dei nuovi Lincei, and up to 1870 had issued 23 vols. of Atti. Then the academy changed its name to Reale Accademia dei Lincei, but a portion continued to act under the former title. Each body continued the series of Atti. In 1875 the Reale Accademia enlarged its scope, and formed two classes, one for physical and mathematical sciences, the other for moral and historical sciences. It has published 5 series of Atti.
